⊕ Be steady. Be calm. Do your best. Luck! ⊕

Exercise 1: Read the passage taken from a modern novel. Then read the ten questions which follow and choose the best answer to each question. /20 p./

In winter my Grandfather Connor used to wear an enormous coat made out of the pelt of a bear. So shaggy and coarse-furred was this coat, so unevenly coloured in patches ranging from amber to near-black, and so vile-smelling when it became wet with snow, that it seemed to have belonged when it was alive to some lonely and giant Kodiak crankily roaming a high frozen plateau, or an ancient grizzly scarred with battles in the sinister forests of the north. In actuality, it had been an ordinary bear and it had come, sad to say, from no more fabled a place than Galloping Mountain, only a hundred miles from Manawaka. The skin had once been given to my grandfather as payment, in the days when he was a blacksmith, before he became a hardware merchant and developed the policy of cash only. He had it cobbled into a coat by the local shoemaker, and Grandmother Conner had managed to sew in the lining. How long ago that was, no one could say for sure, but my mother, the eldest of his family, said she could not remember a time when he had not worn it. To me, at the age of ten and a half, this meant it must be a century old. The coat was so heavy that I could not lift it by myself. I never used to wonder how he could carry that phenomenal weight on himself or why he would choose to, because it was obvious that although he was old, he was still an extraordinarily strong man, built to shoulder weights.

Whenever I went into Simlow's Ladies' Wear with my mother, and made grotesque faces at myself in the long mirror while she tried on dresses, Millie Christopherson who worked there would use a phrase which made me break into snickering until my mother, who was death on bad manners, tapped anxiously at my shoulders with her slender, nervous hands. "It's you, Mrs. MacLeod," Millie would say feelingly, "no kidding, it's absolutely you." I appropriated the phrase for my grandfather's winter coat. "It's you," I would laugh nastily at him, although never, of course, aloud. In my head I sometimes called him "The Great Bear". The name had many associations other than his coat and his bad temper. It was the way he would stalk around the Brick House as though it were a cage, on Sundays, impatient for the new week's beginning that would release him into the only freedom he knew, the acts of work. It was the way he would take to the basement whenever a man came to call upon Aunt Edna, which in those days was not often, because, as I had overheard my mother outlining in sighs to my father, most of the single men her age in Manawaka considered that the time she had spent working in Winnipeg had made more difference than it really had, and the situation was not helped by her flyway manner (whatever that might mean). But if ever she was asked to a movie, and the man was waiting and making formal weather-chat with Grandmother Connor, Grandfather would walk through the living room as though seeking a place of rest and not finding it, would stare fixedly without speaking, and would then descend the basement steps to the rocking chair which sat beside the furnace. Above ground, he would not have been found dead sitting in a rocking chair, which he considered a piece of furniture suitable only for the elderly, of whom he was never in his own eyes one. From his cave, however, the angry crunching of the wooden rockers against the cement floor would echo throughout the house, a kind of sub-verbal Esperanto, a disapproval which even the most stupid person could not fail to comprehend.

1.1. The pelt Grandfather's coat was made of belonged to	1.6. The ten-and-a-half-year old narrator made grotesque faces in the mirror because
A) a bear roaming Galloping Mountain.	A) it is natural of children her age to thus amuse themselves.
B) a giant bear from some high plateau.	B) that was her way of mocking at Millie Christopherson.
C) an ancient grizzly from the forests of the north.	C) she rarely had a chance to look at herself in a mirror.
D) a bear from some outlandish place.	D) she was not allowed to do that at home.
1.2. Which of these statements is NOT true? The coat was	1.7. Millie Christophoreson's phrase "It's you Mrs. MacLeod"
A) bad-smelling.	A) expressed her annoyance at seeing her customer.
B) rough and untidy.	B) indicated her surprise at seeing Mrs. MacLeod.
C) coloured completely in black patches.	C) was a kind of snickering at Mrs. MacLeod
D) coloured in brown and black parches.	D) meant that a dress expressed Mrs. MacLeod's personality.
1.3. At the time the story is told Grandfather Connor was	1.8. In her mind the little girl called her grandfather "The Great Bear" because of
A) a shoemaker.	A) his rough coat.
B) a blacksmith.	B) his bad temper.
C) a trapper.	C) his manner of walking.
D) a hardware merchant.	D) All of these.
1.4. The coat was made	1.9. Which of these statements is NOT true?  Aunt Edna had few gentlemen callers because
A) more than a hundred years ago.	A) she always showed her superiority to them.
B) when his eldest child was in her teens.	B) she had changed since her return from Winnipeg.
C) at a time no one knew with certainty.	C) her father disapproved of all of them.
D) when Grandfather Connor began to use cash only.	D) she behaved in a flyway manner.
1.5. Grandfather Connor wore the heavy coat most probably because he	1.10. Grandfather Connor showed his disapproval of a gentleman caller of Aunt Edna's by
A) generally liked to wear heavy clothes.	A) walking around the house as if it were a cage.
B) was simply fond of and used to it.	B) sitting in the rocking chair in the living-room
C) was an extraordinarily strong man.	C) rocking angrily in the chair by the furnace.
D) he had cobbled it.	D) staring fixedly at him without speaking.

Exercise 2: Some of the sentences below contain an error. For each sentence, select the one underlined part that contains the mistake. If there is no error in the sentence, mark answer D. /20 p./

		'
2.1.	There aren't hardl	ly any valid reason B	s you can adva	nce for dela C	ying the project for	or such a long ti	me. No error D
2.2.	Professor Robins	has given the keyn		the June co	onference last year	r. No error D
2.3.	I want to show my	y friends the photo		during my ro B		and. No error D

•

2.4. The coming exam session could hardly be the worst for him than the last when he failed in all his exams. No error

2.5. Each of us are obliged to do his or her own work. No error D
2.6. Mark's report states the problem better than Jane. No error C D
2.7. My parents never $\frac{\text{went out}}{A}$ for the evening without $\frac{\text{to leave}}{B}$ a math problem $\frac{\text{for me}}{C}$ to solve. $\frac{\text{No error}}{D}$
2.8. It couldn't have been Peter you have met at the party. He was ill in bed. No error D
2.9. The number of people without jobs $\underline{rises}$ $\underline{A}$ the moment. $\underline{No \ error}$ $\underline{D}$
2.10. While Jane was a child her mother published a collection of bedtime stories which were her own versions $\frac{A}{B}$
of well-known fairytales. No error D
Exercise 3: Fill in the missing word. /20 p./
3.1. I'm afraid I can't accept this report. It's not good
3.2. I haven't heard
3.3. The only thing I don't like about living abroad is that I my friends. I haven't seen them for months.
3.4. He promised not to let me, but I still don't trust him.
3.5. I don't know what to write at the end of my CV! I've run of ideas.
3.6. He had to pay in as they didn't accept his credit card.
3.7. I have using the same washing powder for years.
3.8. They have lived in the same house
3.9. The film was terrible. It's the film I've ever seen.
3.10. Alexander Graham Bell the telephone.
Exercise 4: Read the text below, then circle the answer A, B, C or D which best fits each space. /20 p./
House prices, (4.0.) like taxes, very rarely go down, so if you find (4.1.)
The (4.6) for this trend are, for the most part, financial. The cost of buying a new home and the problems of moving house are enough to make anybody think twice before deciding to relocate. Renovating allows you to stay in your own neighbourhood and in your (4.7.) home while making it more practical and comfortable to live in.
Although it is tempting to (4.8.)

..... insurance requirements.

(4.0.)	A.	such	B.	like	C.	as	D.	so
(4.1.)	A.	oneself	В.	themselves	C.	yourself	D.	your
(4.2.)	A.	consider	В.	think	C.	remember	D.	do
(4.3.)	A.	cosy	В.	spacious	C.	expensive	D.	cramped
(4.4.)	A.	have	В.	buy	C.	use	D.	need
(4.5.)	A.	thinking	В.	choosing	C.	wanting	D.	needing
(4.6.)	A.	reasons	В.	meanings	C.	purposes	D.	findings
(4.7.)	A.	real	В.	new	C.	own	D.	only
(4.8.)	A.	make	B.	try	C.	find	D.	attempt
(4.9.)	A.	hire	B.	rent	C.	buy	D.	borrow
(4.10.)	A.	on	В.	to	C.	over	D.	for
George for them in the here a few min a meal yet.  The Will for his friends (5.10.)	(5.1.) the hote finites (is. Both thites	2. restaurant. He ago. He (5.5.)	(invite (5.3) White (5.0) white (5.0) y only their fr. an (be) a	ite) his English  .)	Georga then.	s to a restau e) a little ear f) a drink. H ge (5.8.) (r h before. The burse now. H (already k ago. They	rant. He (5.16.)	(5.2.)
					Cł	necked b	ov:
					Ο.	1.
Total:		/ of	100	points				